Allied Blows Shake Axis On Three Fronts Exercises Staged Indoors Because Of Inclement Weather

Successes Scored In Libya, Russia and New Guinea

BY ROGER GREENE
Associated Press War Editor

Allied sledgehammer blows shook the Axis on three fronts in World War II today.

1. In Libya, the British Eighth Army was reported "in contact" with Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's battered Africa Corps near Tarhuna, only 40 miles from the big Axis base at Tripoli, after a lightning advance inland across the desert.

A second British column striking along the coastal road had passed through the enemy strongholds at Misurata and Garibaldi and reached Ziten, 90 miles east of Tripoli.

Once again, it appeared, Rommel was in headlong retreat, with Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's army in hot pursuit.

2. In Russia, the Red armies of the north lifted the epic 17-month-old siege of Leningrad, former Czarist capital, after recapturing the ancient Nazi-held fortress of Shlisselburg, killing 13,000 Germans, routing four divisions and demolishing 470 enemy strongpoints.

At the same time, Russia's southern armies surged forward within 18 miles of Kharkov, the "Ukraine Pittsburgh," killed 2,600 more Germans in 24 hours in the battle to annihilate 50,000 survivors of the Nazi siege armies before Stalingrad, and sharply increased the threat to the great German base at Rostov.

3. In New Guinea, Allied field headquarters announced that American and Australian troops had captured two vital Japanese strongholds—Sanananda Point and Sanananda village—in the closing phases of a drive to exterminate the remnants of a 15,000-man Japanese army.

Allied seizure of the coastal end of the enemy-held Papuan corridor left the remaining enemy forces in three tightly-enveloped pockets half a mile to two miles inland.

On the Libyan front, British headquarters announced that Gen. Montgomery's forces were now attacking the Axis "toward Tarhuna," 40 miles from Tripoli, after cutting the enemy from Beni Uid and inflicting losses in a tank battle.

Beni Uid lies 100 miles south-east of Tripoli.

Even before news of this spectacular British advance became known, dispatches from Allied headquarters in North Africa suggested that Rommel, with an army of possibly 110,000 men, might abandon Tripoli and fall back to fortified positions in Tunisia.

Soviet reports said the Red armies, battling in terrible cold and sometimes in waist-deep snow, were now hammering the Nazi invasion armies into retreat along a 200-mile front from Leningrad to the Caucasus.

Heavy battles were reported raging in seven major sectors—Leningrad, Veliki Luki, Voronezh, Stalingrad, north of Rostov, east of Rostov, and in the Caucasus.

Soviet headquarters said the Red armies attacking below Voronezh had advanced within 118 miles of the great Kharkov steel center, after capturing Aleksyevka, Rossosh and Karpenskovo, and declared that Axis prisoners on this front alone now totaled 31,000.

"The enemy is retreating, abandoning equipment and large quantities of army property," the Russian command said.

Other Red army troops driving down the railway to Rostov, in a thrust aimed at cutting off the "escape corridor" of perhaps 500,000 Axis troops in southern Russia, were officially reported to (Turn to Page Seven)

PRESIDENT ORDERS STRIKERS TO WORK

SEIZURE OF MINES HINTED IN STATEMENT

Chief Executive Says Government Will Take Steps To Protect Security Of Nation

INSURGENTS STILL OUT

Washington, Jan. 19.—(P)—President Roosevelt, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, today directed all striking anthracite coal miners to go back to work at once.

He said that if they failed to comply with his directive in 48 hours, the government would take the necessary steps to protect the security of the nation against a strike which comes at a time of a shortage of fuel in war time.

Some 5,000 striking miners returned to their jobs in Pennsylvania's anthracite field today in the largest back-to-work movement since the wildcat walkout began three weeks ago.

The chief executive issued his order in telegrams to officials of the United Mine Workers of America, national and local.

The parent body has emphasized the strike is unauthorized.

In previous disputes, involving labor and management, the military has taken over and supervised continued production.

The 20-day-old strike in the Pennsylvania hard coal fields has involved members of some 25 local unions. They have been demanding a $2 a day wage increase and cancellation of a 50-cents a month increase in union dues from $1.00.

Opponents To Longer Work Week Active

Washington, Jan. 19.—(P)—Senate leaders indicated today that immediate consideration of a 48-hour standard work week would be blocked when Senator Reed (R-Kas.), author of the proposal, attempts to call it up within the next two weeks.

Reed told reporters before he left for a fortnight of fuel hearings in the midwest that he would seek consideration of the bill on the senate floor when he returns. For that reason, he said, he had asked that it "lie on the table," thus keeping it out of the education and labor committee, which he called "the graveyard of such bills."

Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky told the senate yesterday, however, that the bill which would start overtime pay after 48 instead of 40 hours, should be referred to the committee. Republican Leader McNary of Oregon agreed with him. They also agreed to wait until Reed's return before having the bill sent to the committee, so that he could speak on it.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla.), a member of the committee, told reporters he was "sure the bill would receive fair consideration and would be acted on with dispatch."

First Lady Wears Good Luck Bracelet With Toy Elephant

BY WILLIAM G. SMOCK

Harrisburg, Jan. 19.—(P)—Brown-haired Mrs. Charity Scott Martin, Pennsylvania's incoming first lady, made sure today she wore her favorite gold bracelet for her husband's inauguration as governor—"just for luck although I'm not in the least superstitious."

The bracelet with a miniature elephant attached was the gift of Republican friends and Mrs. Martin carried it through Adjutant General Edward Martin's election campaign.

Mrs. Martin arranged to take over the roomy, old brownstone executive mansion several hours before Edward Martin became governor but waited to move her family belongings there until outgoing Governor Arthur H. James and Mrs. James left the state capital for Wilkes-Barre.

Moving for the new occupants meant merely having a few pieces of luggage carried a few blocks from a downtown hotel to the North Front street mansion, Mrs. Martin said the heavier goods would be brought to Harrisburg later in the week.

"I appreciate the honor of being first lady and I'm looking forward to an interesting life," declared the blue-eyed Mrs. Martin. "I am pretty much of a housebody and it will be very different."

She chose a black dress with beaded trimming, a mink coat and a small, black hat for the inauguration and said she would wear a plain white crepe dress trimmed with beads at tonight's ball.

Mrs. James selected a black crepe dress with velvet trim for afternoon wear with a Persian lamb coat

Investigation Of F. C. C. Is Decided Upon

House Directs Inquiry By Special Committee Headed by Rep. Cox

INDUCTIONS ATTACKED

Washington, Jan. 19.—(P)—The house today ordered an investigation of the Federal Communications Commission by a special committee headed by Rep. Cox (D-Ga.). The action came on a voice vote after Cox, author of the resolution requesting the investigation, had accused FCC Chairman James L. Fly of being "the worst... bureaucrat" and had said the entire FCC set-up was "the nastiest nest of rats to be found in this entire country."

In the senate wing meanwhile Chairman Thomas (D-Okla.) of an appropriations sub-committee handling war department bills called for a slowing up of Selective Service inductions "until we can take an accounting of the needs." Asserting he had heard reports of plans to increase the armed forces to a total of 12,000,000 men, Thomas expressed doubt that number could be put in uniform without causing a serious dislocation in all phases of war production, including the growing of food.

On the labor front, both the Democrats and Republican leaders of the senate indicated they would block immediate consideration of a 48 hour standard work week (Turn to Page Seven)

Mystery Note Found In Car

Cleveland, Jan. 19.—(P)—Police last night found a pistol containing two empty shells and a note addressed to a Titusville, Pa., woman in an abandoned automobile bearing Pennsylvania license plates.

The note, addressed to Mrs. Julia Haas (416 North Martin St.), Titusville, and signed "Bud," read as follows, police said:

"By leaving the car here you will find it. Keep your chin up and forget me. This is the only thing left for me to do. Loads of love. Take of K - - - (illegible) and please bring her up to be a good Christian girl."

The car was found near Cleveland's downtown district. The gun, containing five loaded shells and the two empty ones, was found in a glove compartment along with a badge inscribed with "Keystone Ordnance Works, ST-2762," police said. Authorities added they had no information about the person who abandoned the car.

NARROW ESCAPE

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 19.—(P)—Jumping from his stalled automobile, Edwin A. Tenny last night watched a westbound express hit and carry the machine 600 feet before bouncing it into a parallel track—in the path of another train which bumped the auto back to the point of original impact.

STEWARDSHIP IS DEDICATED FOR VICTORY

Broad Post-War Program Is Laid Down by New Executive in Inaugural Speech

PLEDGES COOPERATION

Harrisburg, Jan. 19.—(P)—Governor Edward Martin dedicated his administration today to winning the war and laid down a broad post-war program to prevent the commonwealth's returning soldiers from becoming "another lost generation."

"Right now, nothing matters but winning the war," said the lean 63-year-old retired soldier after taking the oath as Pennsylvania's 35th governor, "because if we do not win it, nothing else will matter."

At the same time the new chief executive expressed "a prayerful hope that during our stewardship in office, a happy peace will crown our efforts," and pointed out that peace would bring "a multitude of problems in its wake."

Martin, who retired from the army a year ago because of overage for combat service, pledged that in event of peace during his four-year term, the soldier returning to his home would receive first attention and consideration.

Martin started out his inaugural address by accepting the high office "with deep humility," and concluded it on the same note.

"With the help of Almighty God, we pledge our resources, our hearts, our minds, the work of our (Turn to Page Seven)

Defense Units Win Praises From James

Harrisburg, Jan. 19.—(P)—More than 500,000 members of civilian and military defense units in Pennsylvania today won high praise from retiring Governor Arthur H. James for their endeavors in the state's test mobilization maneuver.

As one of his last official acts, James yesterday praised the work of all participating and called the test "an unqualified success."

A critique issued by him declared "the purpose of the test was, first, to provide training and, second, to uncover flaws or weak points, to uncover the tactical stress of the problem itself and under the pressure of the actual mobilization and movement of all elements concerned, the first objective was fulfilled and the second objective accomplished."

Reports of the maneuver, Thursday, Jan. 14, the governor explained, showed:

State and army troops reaching destinations without delay in blackout; need of closer liaison between combat units and defense auxiliary police; some messengers delayed because of inadequate identification; too many "parade ground" formations noted in combat units; control centers in some (Turn to Page Seven)

War Situation Is Reviewed In Commons

Deputy Prime Minister Views Year With Sober Confidence

WILL HEAR CHURCHILL

London, Jan. 19.—(P)—Clement R. Attlee, deputy prime minister, told the opening session of parliament today that Great Britain could "look forward to 1943 with justifiable confidence," and that the successes scored by the Allied Nations last year were to be viewed with "sober satisfaction."

In a brief statement on the war situation pending an anticipated complete review by Prime Minister Churchill within the next few days, Attlee lauded the "wonderful achievements" of the Russian army and said "it looks as if none of the great forces before Stalingrad will escape from the trap."

Describing the Allied objective in North Africa as total destruction of enemy forces, he told commons that had weather in Tunisia had restricted movement of motorized forces and had "seriously affected the provision of airfields."

"We have every confidence in General Eisenhower and General (Turn to Page Seven)

CRASH VICTIM IS SON OF WORLD WAR VET

Altoona, Jan. 19.—(P)—Sergeant Robert Cole, 20, tail gunner who perished with 10 others in the crash of an army bomber near Alamogordo, N. M., on Sunday, was a graduate of Altoona high school and son of Captain William C. Cole, a veteran of World War I.

The elder Cole died last March. He was a past commander of the Charles R. Rowan Post of the American Legion here.

The son is survived by his mother and a sister.

By L. U. LESLIE

Harrisburg, Jan. 19.—(P)—Edward Martin, one-time farmer boy, was inaugurated governor of Pennsylvania today at a hurriedly-arranged indoor ceremony with an humble prayer on his lips for divine guidance to help him lead the commonwealth through the trying years of war.

The shift of the inaugural scene from an outdoor, white-painted stand erected at the foot of the Capitol steps was decided upon two hours before the ceremony because of a continued misty rain, following overnight intermittent showers which had soaked several hundred chairs placed on the inaugural stand.

The lean 63-year-old retired soldier, who entered the army as a buck private 45 years ago and left as a major general, took the oath as the commonwealth's 35th governor in the forum of the Education

Pennsylvania's chief justice, Building, largest auditorium at the capitol, with a seating capacity of 1,800.

George W. Maxey, administered the oath, at 12:05 p. m. Martin placing his hand on the treasured testament his childhood sweetheart, now his wife, gave him in 1898 when he went to the Spanish American War. The testament was opened at the verse:

"Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

The simple ceremony was confined to essentials and omitted the traditional parade.

Admission to the Forum was by tickets which were issued to 2,999 persons for the chairs at the abandoned outdoor stand. A crowd of several thousand others milled about the outside of the building.

Before Martin's induction, his running-mate, Lieutenant Governor John C. Bell, Jr., was inaugurated in the senate chamber with the retiring and incoming governors as interested spectators. Chief Justice Maxey also administered the oath of office to Bell.

Retiring Governor James, in a farewell statement, expressed gratitude for the "confidence and cooperation given me."

Former Governor John K. Tener sat several seats from Martin, next to U. S. Senator James H. Davis. Mrs. James and Mrs. Martin, seated side-by-side, were both dressed in black and wore orchid corsages. Mrs. Martin also carried a bouquet of war stamps.

Officials attending the inauguration included a number of Pennsylvania congressmen. Members of both house and senate and of the outgoing and incoming cabinets.

With military precision the ceremony got underway at 12:01 p. m., when M. Harvey Taylor, chairman of the inaugural committee, announced Martin was present for induction into office. Singing of one verse of America followed.

Major Frank D. Scott, U. S. army chaplain and Martin's Frother-in-law, gave the invocation.

William J. Ridge, chief clerk of the senate, read the certificate of election. Martin himself opened the small testament at the verse he had selected for the oath-taking—as photographers' flash bulbs flared.

Martin replied firmly "I do" to the oath amid applause.

Martin spoke 17 minutes. As the throng applauded, Martin shook hands with Chief Justice Maxey and Bell, James put on his rubbers and then stood, lustily singing "The Star Spangled Banner" with the crowd. Martin stood at military attention.

Major Scott pronounced the benediction as the ceremony concluded—just 28 minutes after it started. Martin and James shook hands and the new governor turned to Chief Justice Maxey to sign his name to the oath of office.

James drew a big hand as he left the stand to go with Mrs. James to Wilkes-Barre for a visit with friends before taking a vacation trip.

Missing were the special trains that usually rumble into the capitol city on inauguration day, carrying thousands of marching clubs, each headed by its own band.

In keeping with Martin's request for a ceremony of "utmost simplicity," the inaugural committee dropped the traditional parade and limited the inauguration proper to 30 minutes.

The capitol was ordered closed (Turn to Page Seven)

BROWN TO CONSIDER CHANGE IN GAS ZONES

New Castle, Jan. 19.—(P)—Preston Brown, who was confirmed yesterday as national price administrator, has given a half-promise that western Pennsylvania motorists will go back on the four-gallon-per-car gasoline rationing basis.

Brown, interviewed here as he drove to Washington, said it "sounds logical" that western Pennsylvania should be in the same gasoline area as Ohio, and added that "when I get to Washington I will give this considerable thought."

Declaring he had heard that plans are under way to increase the armed forces to a total of 12,000,000 men, Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) called for a draft curtailment today until congress is told just how large an army is needed to win the war.

Thomas, chairman of an appropriations subcommittee handling war department bills, told reporters he favored delaying any further large increases in the size of the army "until we can take an accounting of the needs."

Thomas said he would raise this question at a meeting of Democratic members of the appropriations committee which acting Chairman McKellar (D-Tenn.) plans to call soon to discuss policy questions.

The Oklahoma questioned whether the armed forces could be built up to 12,000,000 without causing a serious dislocation in all phases of war production, including the growing of food.

President Roosevelt told congress on Jan. 7 that the armed forces had grown from 2,000,000 to 7,000,000 in one year, adding that despite the withdrawal of 5,000,000 from the food and factory fronts, the greatest quantity of food in the country's history had been produced.

Surplus Gasoline Now Moving East Out Of This Region

Local refiners commenting over the weekend on the reports from Washington published Saturday to the effect that they face a reduction in crude runs to stills because of mounting inventories of gasoline said that motor fuel is now moving out of this section eastward and northward to relieve shortages.

A continuation of this movement, it is pointed out, will prevent any undue accumulation of gasoline in the refiners' storage tanks in this area.

The shortage of gasoline, it is declared, is not confined to the eastern seaboard area. Points in Western New York, it is said, are also short on gasoline and gasoline from this area is expected to move to Buffalo in greater than normal volume to help relieve the situation there.

The Office of Price Administration for War and Supplies and Distribution Committees of the Petroleum Industry are both aware of the gasoline stock position of the Western Pennsylvania Refiners and have taken action to insure prompt distribution of any surplus supplies.

Premium gasoline, according to informed sources, is relatively shorter than the regular grade.

Meanwhile, there are no indications that the oil producing regions would be put into a zone relieved from the ban on use of cars for pleasure driving.

Some observers feel that as long as there is a scarcity of gasoline in areas so close as Buffalo that there is faint prospect of this area getting special treatment.

However, a story comes from New Castle that Prentiss March Brown, new OPA head was in that city and was surprised to find Western Pennsylvania being treated differently than eastern Ohio in the rationing of gasoline. He had an idea Pennsylvania got four gallons of gasoline for their coupons and that the line of demarcation between the amounts on the coupons came with the Allegheny mountains. He promised to give "considerable thought" to the matter when he got to Washington.

"Bill" Barney Had Interesting Career In National Oil Fields

Many who read in these columns a few days ago announcement of the death of William R. Barney in Tulsa, Okla., will be interested in the following taken from the January 13 issue of the Tulsa Tribune:

William Robert Barney, 61, 212½ N. Frisco ave., production expeditor of W. C. Norris Manufacturing, Inc., and holder of a number of patents on oil field equipment, died in a Tulsa hospital early today, having been ill several months.

Mr. Barney, first employed by the Norris company in Tulsa, Pa., in 1903, was associated with it continuously except for a few years during which he was engaged in professional baseball and private business.

Beginning his career in the oil industry as a youth, Mr. Barney went into the field first near Warren, Pa., leasing and rig building. In 1903 he married Miss Maude Bathurst of Clarendon, Pa., who survives him.

Through the athletic club of Norris, he went into a career of professional baseball, playing in the Terre Haute, Ind., and Holyoke, Mass., clubs. Transferred with the company to Tulsa in 1911, he was a member of the original Tulsa baseball club in 1912. Later he was superintendent of the plant here and directed war work for the first World War.

Construction work in the Isthmus of Panama was part of the career of Mr. Barney. Transferred to Tulsa, he was associated with the company there, and since 1931 in Kilgore, Texas.

Mr. Barney returned to Tulsa in August to serve as production expeditor with the company. During his career, he conceived and completed a number of designs for oil company equipment. He specialized in field layout of pumping equipment and designing machinery and steel tools.

In later years Mr. Barney found time for hunting and fishing and was an ardent sportsman even to the time of his last illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Thursday in the Robert McBarney Funeral home service room by Rev. T. B. Lackey, pastor of the Nogales Avenue Baptist church, in which Mr. Barney was a member and teacher.

The body will be sent to Fort Worth for interment under direction of the Lucas Funeral home there.

Besides Mrs. Barney, the survivors are two daughters, Mrs. C. P. Pyron of Fort Worth and Mrs. C. O. Jones, 1419 N. Quanah avenue, two sons, Fred O. Barney of Odessa, Texas, and William D. Barney, Fort Worth; three sisters, Mrs. Thomas Crocker of Clarendon, Pa., Mrs. Ed Otten, Columbus, Ohio, and Mrs. Mary E. Drain, 128 N. Xanthus avenue; and a brother, Fred H. Barney of Fort Worth.

Dr. Anderson Head Medical Society For '43

The annual meeting of the Warren County Medical Society was held at the Conewango Club Monday afternoon and Dr. E. R. Anderson was elected president for the coming year.

Others chosen were Dr. Elizabeth S. Beatty, first vice president; Dr. Gail K. Ridsperger, second vice president; Dr. Hilding A. Bengt, re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Retiring President Dr. Leonard Rosenzweig gave a splendid address, a survey of activities of the organization which, in spite of numerous difficulties occasioned by the war, continued most efficiently.

He urged the organization to take a more prominent part in fostering public health and in pioneering measures of disease prevention. He stated that although about one-half of the physicians of the state under 45 years of age are in military service and Warren county has its proportion, doctors must expect to assume increased responsibilities in connection with industrial hygiene, immunization of children against infectious diseases, educational programs furthering better living conditions for the physically unfit and all public health movements if they, as an organized group, are to maintain their identity. He concluded by saying there are great movements on foot to make preventive medicine more effective than in the past and the Warren county society must be a leader in such movements.

Dr. E. S. Briggs stated that Warren county, in its school program, has carried on most effectively the immunization against diphtheria, so that in this county in the past ten years this disease has been a rarity; that in the borough smallpox vaccination is carried out 100 per cent among the school children; that in the preschool roundups and school inspections a large majority of the remediable defects found are corrected; and now careful examinations are being made in the upper grades in order to discover those physically defective who would be unsuited for military service.

The discussion brought problems out that malnutrition and dental hygiene are still unsolved problems and proper education in these subjects is lacking among physicians and laity.

Dinner which followed for 26 members was sponsored by Doctors Elizabeth Beatty, O. S. Brown, E. S. Briggs, F. M. Buckingham and L. E. Chapman.

Record Attendance For 29th Annual Meeting Of YWCA; Impressive Pageant Is Highlight

The 29th annual meeting of the YWCA, held last evening following six o'clock dinner, drew one of the largest attendance figures in recent years, despite bad weather and transportation difficulties.

Tables were decorated in red, white and blue candles placed in blue triangles, American flags and printed programs which bore tiny silk flags and contained printed reports of officers and departments. On the committee for this very successful event were Mrs. F. O. Peterson, Mrs. Mabel Swanson, Mrs. J. H. West, Bertha Fraring, Jennie Ryan, Doris Peterson, Betty Lopez, Effie Paterson and Dorothy Schmidt.

Mrs. H. C. Warren gave the invocation and, after dinner, Mrs. Carl Lundahl, association president, welcomed members and guests and read a poem to a "brand new year." After reports by Mrs. Franklin Hoff and Mrs. U. S. Rogers, Mrs. Freeman O. Peterson announced choice of the following directors for three-year terms: Mrs. W. F. Bennett, Mrs. D. W. Crockett, Mrs. H. B. Pettit, Mrs. Grover Lind, Mrs. J. A. Davidson and Miss MayBelle Bairstow. In addition, Mrs. Robert Young, Miss Doris Peterson and Mrs. Harold Smith were elected to fill unexpired terms. H. West, and her staff; to Mrs. Anderson and her workers; to Mrs. Peterson and her dinner committee and to all who had in any way contributed to the work and success of the YW in the year just past.

Miss Kahl directed and Patty Cow accompanied for the impressive pageant which symbolized the noble women of the past and the part women have in today's great world tasks. Millie Kopp acted as reader and Gloria Hausman, Melda Olsen and Virginia Frederickson formed the speaking choir.

Appearing in costume on the banquet hall stage were the following cast members: Queen Esther, Mrs. Olive Huff; Saint Hilda, Mrs. J. A. Federation Head Given Ruling On the Use of Cars

Clubwomen of Warren, as well as members of many other organizations and groups, will be interested in announcement by Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, that she has had from Office of Price Administration officials a response to her request for a ruling on whether or not women may attend club meetings in their cars.

The OPA rules, according to Mrs. Whitehurst, that they may drive their cars to and from such meetings if the programs are devoted solely to the war effort.

Mrs. Whitehurst continues:

"Bridge parties, social activities, fashion shows and lectures on non-war subjects should be out for the duration, and no woman's club should hold meetings, unless its programs are geared to the war effort. Our government needs the services of all women."

"If clubwomen feel that they must have relaxation from their heavy war duties, then they should walk to their club meeting places. No clubs can use the excuse that they do not know how to promote war programs as the General Federation of Women's Clubs has outlined programs on all phases of war work for its 2,500,000 members. To date over 1,000,000 programs, 400,000 speeches, and 300,000 kits on governmental war material have been sent out from national headquarters."

Spirit of 1943!

Modern methods, modern efficiency—but the same old flaming spirit of 1776. What else could give men the vitality to produce tanks, guns, planes, armaments in such enormous quantities? What else could enable the railroads of America to handle millions of troops with such precision and smoothness... to haul twice the tonnage of war materials pre-war experts estimated them capable of... to take over the great oil and miscellaneous cargoes of coastwise shipping, and yet keep war transportation rolling? That spirit, as much as mechanical excellence and natural resources, is America's strength. Its "secret weapon." Pennsylvania Railroad is proud to pay tribute to it, and to be a part of it.

Although nationally 25 per cent of all Natural Gas is going into war production, here in this district the figure is at least 50 per cent—which shows what a vital material for victory Natural Gas here has become.

To provide this tremendous Natural Gas supply for war and still maintain normal commercial and domestic service has called for new wells, new pipe-lines, new compressor stations, and record-breaking reserves of Gas in nearby storage pools underground.

The important thing, therefore, is to conserve this valuable fuel and help protect our reserves for very cold days with a minimum use of critical materials.

WAR-TIME INAUGURATION

Pennsylvania's governors since 1790 have assumed office amid inaugural celebrations that brightened dignity with pageantry but war conditions added a more sombre note to the inauguration of Governor Edward Martin today.

Martin asked for inaugural ceremonies of the "utmost simplicity" and the colorful parade of past inauguration days was dropped but the day's program, from all accounts, was showy enough to draw thousands to the capital for the program.

The inaugural was keyed to a war note for the first time since Andrew G. Curtin of Centre county took office the second time in the midst of the war between the states.

Dotting the crowd which was on hand to see the retiring governor, Arthur H. James, turn over the reins of the state government to the man he appointed adjutant general just four years ago was the khaki of the army and the blue of the navy and marine corps. Incidentally the Reserve Corps is sponsoring the annual ball this evening, held in the past by the governor's troop which is in the military service.

Incidentally for the first time in twenty years thousands of rank-and-file employees viewed the change in administrations today without more than usual misgiving about their jobs.

Governor Martin succeeded outgoing Governor Arthur H. James—the first time since 1923 that one Republican organization chief executive has followed another.

Gifford Pinchot, who was independent of the Republican organization, was elected for his first term in 1923. He was followed by John S. Fisher, backed by the organization only to be succeeded by Pinchot for his second term. Then came the Democratic administration of George H. Earle, followed by James.

Last records show approximately 26,000 state employees outside civil service and 10,000 with merit jobs, a total of 36,000.

DRIED BEANS VICTORY FOOD

Food merchants throughout the country are featuring all types of dried edible beans as a Victory Food during the period January 18th through the 23rd, to focus consumer attention on their place in wartime meal planning.

A record crop of nearly 2½ billion pounds of beans makes ample supplies of all types available in spite of large demands for military and lend-lease needs. Since no more tin is being allocated for commercial canning of baked beans, even more emphasis is added to the wisdom of wide consumer use of dried beans.

Dried beans keep well, are economical, and are a highly nutritious food, particularly in protein and iron. Beans are good "meat extenders".

In announcing the new Victory Food locally, William M. Walsh, of the Food Distribution Administration, sponsor of the program, urged consumers to prepare large quantities, particularly of baked beans, at one time, to conserve fuel. The idea is to cook enough at one time to keep under refrigeration for several meals, and perhaps enough to share with uncles, cousins and friends. "It's practical wartime good neighborliness," declared Mr. Walsh.

TIN CAN COLLECTION DAY

Attention, housewives!

One of your first and most important tasks tomorrow morning should be to place along the curb in front of your home containers filled with your tin cans which will be collected by the Warren County Salvage committee.

Tin is a vital material for war needs. It must be used for bushings and bearings for cannon mounts, for airplane motors, for canisters of gas masks. It is essential for electrical machinery and communication equipment. It must be had for vital medication purposes. It is necessary solder material. Much of the foods for the armed forces must be packed in tin cans. There is no substitute for tin, and most of the tin producing countries are now in the hands of the Axis.

It takes 9,000 tin cans to provide the necessary tin for a light army tank, 168 cans for a trench mortar, 21,000 for a short-range heavy bomber, and 27,000 for a long-range heavy bomber.

Put out your tin tomorrow and help can the Axis!

Says the Titusville Herald: "We wish the fellow who put western Pennsylvania in the seaboard area would run for office."

Both Needed in the Fight

Washington in Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The last person I would have expected (and perhaps you, too) to get off on the wrong foot in the 75th Congress was Rep. Clare Boothe Luce. Being the wife of Publisher Henry Luce, Mrs. Luce was justifiably expected to know all about reports. As a "journalist" herself, she should have been familiar enough with reportorial routine not to have tripped over her own backyard clothesline, but that's just what she did.

When Congresswoman Luce arrived at Union Station here, she had a reception committee. It was composed entirely of the press. The train was 20 minutes late, which didn't upset "the press," but apparently did Mrs. Luce. She ducked out the other way and dashed for her hotel. "The press," having but one idea in mind—getting an assignment off its neck—followed.

At her hotel, Mrs. Luce, to say the least, was inaccessible. The next day, she explained that she was late for an appointment, had been travelling for days, had no freshen up a bit, and had no intention of being rude.

Let it go at that. But there never has been a better example of the difference between Broadway-Hollywood and Washington. Clare Boothe Luce, Broadway playwright and Hollywood scenarist, played the old movie picture trick of ducking the press. That's something Washington newsmen and women don't comprehend, understand, or quite savor.

Hollywood Gossip

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Eddie Cantor, who christened it "The March of Dimes," has been working on the annual campaign for funds to fight infantile paralysis.

Eddie has been working also on plans to tour war factories over the country. He has been thinking also about a movie. He has been beating out his weekly radio show—beating it out of himself and his staff of gagsters. He also—and also—also.

Past 50 now, the bug-eyed Cantor seems to spend his days on springs. He bounces when he walks. He bounces up when he sits down. He bounces when he talks, and he talks fast as the ideas bounce around.

He's full of the war plant tour now. "I'm going to visit 30 plants," he said. "I'm going to ask all the workers to give five minutes of their own time each day—just five minutes during lunch—to keep on working. Think of it! With 12,000,000 war workers that would add up to 60,000,000 minutes, or 1,000,000 hours a day for extra guns, planes, tanks, ammunition! I'm going to ask them to do it because it might shorten the war by six months, might save hundreds of thousands of our boys' lives. I don't think they'll believe I'm talking on behalf of their bosses—I'm a union man now."

He was wealthy and successful in 1929. The crash left him flat and $235,000 in the hole. "The only thing I had that wasn't on margin was my sense of humor," he said. "I went home to Ida!" his wife of nearly 20 years—"and we talked it over. We could have retrenched, but I knew it was a question of giving up or keeping my ambition. We didn't cut down. We didn't fire anybody or cut a servant's pay."

Eddie went out on the road in 1932. In three years he was clear of debt and free to save a dollar again.

Shall mortal man be more just than God? shall a man be more pure than his maker?—Job, 4:17.

God never meant that man should scale the Heavens By strides of human wisdom. In His works, Though wondrous, He commands us in His word To seek Him rather where His mercy shines. —Cowper.

Blonquist Furnitures Take Rocks; Struthers Drop Bakery

Both Games Turn Into Thrillers As League Gets Under Motion

The "Y" League Monday night warfare got off to a thrilling start before a good-sized crowd last night as the league went into motion for the first half and fount the Rocks falling to the Blonquist Furniture and the Struthers-Wells five blasting the newly formed Butter-Kruts.

The initial tilt got under way at 8 p. m., with the Butter-Kruts feeling their way because of the short time they've been together, and the Struthers hitting a fast pace to take the count, 43 to 17.

The bakery five played a fast game and, with substitutions frequent, came through a first quarter by holding the strong "E's" to a 9 count while scoring 4 themselves, then fell by the wayside in the second stanza as the Struthers quint opened up with Chase, Caldwell and Ackley hitting center frequently and stringing up 15 points to the newcomers' 3 and ending the half at 26 to 7.

Undoubtedly the bakery will be one of the fastest teams in the league when they get into playing condition and showed sparks of this in the third period when Confer and "Springs" Johnson started the ball going and led the passing period by nailing 6 points to the foe's 10, but the situation was hopeless because of the lead garnered by the Struthers outfit in the second stanza, and the Kruts began sending in new men for experience, with a resulting 43 to 17 ending.

The second contest got under motion with the Rocks led by Nick Creola and Willard Zerbe, hitting the pace-setting Blomquists with quick breaks and center throws to take an early lead and ended a fast quarter at 3 to 0 in favor of the Rocks; then kept the torrid passing session in control to take the second by 9 to 8 and stay at the helm.

The Blomquists cut loose in the third and fourth periods, with Creola shooting and passing superbly plus Pick's dead-eye shots, took the third stanza by an overwhelming 18 to 4 lypup. The Rocks partially regained their stride in the fourth, but the furniture had things just about their own way and took their time with ball passing and only shot when a certain score could be

Covering The Sports Front

—WITH—
"BOB" JOHNSON

Things aren't going to be so bad. Pessimism reigned supreme during those dark hours of two weeks ago Wednesday when the OPA banned all pleasure driving on the eastern seaboard and brought this district under its wing. . . . Everyone tried to make the best of what seemed inevitable, meaning the "finis" of sports. . . . We learn that jumping at conclusions doesn't pay off. . . . The green light was given basketball for the remainder of the season. . . . Then football for '43. . . . baseball in most sections cautiously passed through the light and made it without the well-known whistle. . . . Softball was given the biggest bye when the high-ups opined this game as the cheapest on the lineup and gave it a real backing.

Warren fans can't kick. . . . They're getting the best brands of basketball the town has boasted in years, with the high school's aggregate and the two "Y" leagues going strong. . . . If the school doesn't play baseball on a par with other years, you can depend on J. B. Leidig to handle some intra-mural squads. . . . And a good baseball game will be welcomed around the first of May. . . . Probably softball will head all sports in town for the coming summer and the high school will be in on this, too. . . . The clubs and defense industries about town are already talking plans for the coming mullish season and a swell league should develop. . . . Baseball on any basis except high school will probably fold, although Joe Gardner hasn't come to the informing stage as yet, nor has Emmy Morrison of the Forge. . . . It won't be a bad year. . . . Golf will be hit hard unless the players follow some other courses' plans of transporting the bag-stuffers in a wagon by horse or mule for a week-end. . . . Watch tennis on the rebound. . . . The courts will be finally put in condition, after a few seasons of inactivity—and that's another asset. . . . How about swimming? . . . It would certainly be swell if the pollution of the creeks and river would cease so people could enjoy this sport as in former years, because there won't be any other place for it. . . . On and on you could go to possibilities and still say immobile on the whole set-up. . . . All of Warren can figure themselves better off than a lot of towns, though, with a sports program as intact as we have.

Warren beat Jamestown. . . . Jamestown beat Falconer. . . . Bradford beat Jamestown by 8 points and Youngsville fell to Bradford by 35 counters. . . . By this you can figure out the next few Dragon games for yourself if you've followed the Dragons. . . . If you haven't, it won't make any difference, because basketball isn't your game if you haven't kept in touch with the Warren High team this season. . . . Football has done a lot for the war—some of the college and pro games sold the used footballs for upwards of 10 G's to citizens of note. . . . That adds up if all parts of the country are included. . . . Can you imagine a man buying a pigskin with dough like that when he can't even match it with a mate to start a farm with? . . . That's war for you.

Callura Belts Way Into Feather Title Over Jack Wilson; Army Draws Bye Over Former Head

BY SID FEDER
Providence, R. I., Jan. 19.—(P)—A lot of folks will tell you today that Jackie Callura is the new head man of the featherweights—at least part of 'em—but the champ is really your old Uncle Samuel.

The little belting bull from Canada climbed all over Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson to take the National Boxing Association's portion of the 126-pound crown last night, but now he has to wait on his Old Uncle's say-so before he's going to be able to find out what he can do with it.

For, Uncle Sam already has the finger on Wilson, who has been guaranteed first shot at Callura's crown, and he also has his eagle eye on Willie Pep, the whizz-bang from Connecticut, who has the title blessing of the New York State Athletic Commission. With Wilson slated to be wearing a soldier suit in the next few nights, and Pep awaiting his draft classification, Callura's going to have to look for quite a piece to find any worthy challengers around—at least any who figure to draw more than coffee and cakes at the gate.

Callura's victory, before a sell-out crowd of 5,920 paid customers—largest turnout hereabouts in a decade—also fits into the load of break-busting surprise packages that have been piled up this season, although Wilson was only a 4 to 5 favorite.

The 25-year-old Canadian married and expecting to become a papa before very long, not only won, but was the boss of the show from start to finish, except for a short stretch from the third through the seventh sessions, when the Pittsburgh negro outboxed him. The gross gate was $12,983-80.

Featuring an awkward free-wheeling style of flailing, something like a cross between an octopus on the prowl and a charging rhino, Callura was just too strong for the slim Pennsylvanian, who hadn't had a fight since he broke his arm in a fight last May. For comedy, the folks had a view of both fighters on the floor

If she'd needed to verify her analysis of the situation, Mary got it that afternoon as she and her mother drove to the bridge party. "I'm so thrilled with the Lieutenant's rapid recovery, aren't you, dear?" her mother said gayly, just missing a car as she left-turned into a side street.

Mary held her breath a moment. Mother's driving was sometimes as erratic as her thinking. "Yes—very."

Mary studied her mother's face from the corner of her eye. She'd been perfectly right. Mother's plan was so simple, and so obvious, a child could understand it. Familiarity would breed contempt, she thought bitterly. Yes—but probably only more of Dan's contempt!

"Yes, Mother," she said quietly, and resolved right then to find somewhere to do her patriotic duty—somewhere outside of her own home! If Dan needed cheering, she certainly wasn't the girl to do it!

Still heavy-hearted, Mary reported for duty at the post the next morning, glad to have something to do to occupy her mind. And the events of the morning did just exactly that.

By nine-thirty the first of three strange planes had passed high overhead. The other two followed in quick succession.

Before Mary had finished telephoning in report of the first, she was sure that something utterly sinister was happening. Flying so high she could not identify them, the planes came in directly from the veiling banks of fog just off shore, headed straight toward the mountains. Just as—weeks before—she had observed other planes. Planes that had simply disappeared.

Fire
BUT submarines were known to be off shore. Some of them large enough to carry a small plane. And certainly aircraft could come in this close from a carrier. Mary's heart thumped better, the muffled hum of those distant motors, recalled details of the torpedoing of the Coast Guard cutter that Dan had commanded. Crippled, Dan's ship had radioed the alarm and news had filtered back later that the huge blimp that patrolled the coast had dropped the charge that finished that submarine.

But the enemy was back. Mary felt sure of it as she listened to the drone dying away toward the mountains. She was sure she caught something of alarm in the impersonal voice at Fourth Interceptor Command Headquarters.

When, shortly before noon, she received the telephoned information that three planes had crashed up on the last ridge, that forest rangers reported fires starting, she knew her premonition of danger hadn't been unfounded.

"Of course, they'll find the wrecked planes right away and be able to identify—"

"Don't be too optimistic," the girl who relieved her at noon that day warned her dryly. "Those mountains are vast, you know. It may take days before they find the planes. And did you hear that three farmers in Mission Valley reported they saw parachutists?"

Horrified, Mary stared at the uniformed girl. "Really! Do you suppose they could just be—imagining things?"

"Maybe," the girl shrugged. "I doubt it. We've been receiving so much attention here from our wily enemy—why not parachutists too?"

Mary nodded, started down the steep stone steps. Why not, indeed? And had those planes she'd heard weeks before dropped parachutists, too? Could that account for the sabotage, for the wrecked railway trestle, for the deadly accurate shelling along the coast?

together on three different occasions, without a blow being struck. They just tripped over each other's feet.

Although Callura has a $2,500 forfeit up (posted with National Boxing Association President Abe Greene) guaranteeing Wilson a return title shot in 60 days at either Los Angeles, Boston, Toledo or Pittsburgh, the chances are the ex-champ will be in the army before then.

Last Night's Bouts

Providence, R. I.—Jackie Callura, 126½, Hamilton, Ont., outpointed Jackie Wilson, 125½, Pittsburgh (15) (NBA featherweight title bout.)

Newark—Bobby Ruffin, Queen New York, knocked out Eddie Dowd, 133, Newark (8).

Baltimore—Charley Eagle, 180, Waterbury, Conn., outpointed Lou Brooks, 190, Wilmington, Del. (10).

New York—George Kochar, 166½, Akron, Ohio, knocked out Harry Serio, 163½, Newark (2); Sanders Cox, 185 3-4, Dallas, Tex., outpointed Tony Gargemil, 183 3-4, Philadelphia (8).

San Francisco—Carlo (Lulu) Constantino, 128, New York, outpointed Ray Lunny, 132½, San Francisco (10).

Chicago, Jan. 19.—(P)—President William Harridge of the American League, left today for New York to meet Ford Frick, president of the National League, to complete the newly revised schedules for both leagues.

Their conference will get under way Wednesday. It is necessary to dovetail certain portions of the schedules in cities which have a team in each league. Harridge figures the job will be completed in two days.

Waco, Tex., Jan. 19.—(P)—Lieut. Henry Greenberg—Hank, to you baseball fans—finds it's no trouble at all to interest army air force cadets in physical condition. "The problem is to keep the boys from overdoing it," he grins.

The former Detroit Tiger star describes his current assignment to the air forces flying training command as "a sort of continuous inspection trip all over the gulf coast, west coast and southeast training centers."

We eat what we can and what we can't we can! And when we're through with the cans we add them to the All-American collection to be the Axis. Have your cans processed and out on the curb Wednesday morning, January 20.

Chapter 23
Three More Planes
IN just ten days they brought Dan from the hospital. Mary returned home at noon one day to find him, pale and a little hollow-eyed, but otherwise very much himself. Comfortably settled in Dad's big leather fireside chair in the library, he looked up from his book as Mary, amazed, stopped in the doorway.

"Well, hello," she said automatically and at once missed his characteristic, crinkly-eyed smile. "Hello yourself," he said coolly, rose politely.

"I am so—" she was about to say "surprised"—maybe even thunder-struck better expressed her feelings—but realized that wasn't exactly being the welcoming hostess. So she changed it to "glad that you are making such rapid recovery."

"Thank you." He didn't sit down, didn't even seem to want her to sit down either.

"Well—I am so glad," she said, weakly, wished her lips weren't so ready to tremble.

"You're looking well," he said, and she knew from the cool scrutiny of his blue eyes that he recognized her embarrassment and was enjoying it.

"Thank you"—and couldn't think of another thing to say.

"I haven't had an opportunity before now to congratulate you on your heroism in saving our lives. I wanted to ask you how it felt to be the 'lioness of the hour!'"

Mary winced, remembering her own sarcasm, remembered, too, Dan's reply, "Oh—I'm enjoying it thoroughly."

"I thought as much. At that, you did a nice job."

Lips curling, she smiled, "Thank you so much."

"For a rich man's darling, you do pretty well."

Mary, hands jammed deep in the pockets of her sport coat, realized that he hadn't heard of her broken engagement. For a moment she considered telling him. Then, something held her tongue. He'd hear of it sooner or later. Telling him of it now would seem too much like a plea for forgiveness.

She murmured something polite, and escaped to her room. Where, she demanded of the reflection that faced her when she dropped down on the bench—where for her dressing table—where was the Dan Sherman she'd first met? The one who'd pronounced her beautiful. The one who'd even insisted that she was in love with him. Something had changed him. She—made him seem bitter, hard. Why couldn't he see that she did love him, now. And that she knew it.

That was easy, the reflection seemed to answer. All that first ardor had been before Carmencita! Simple as that!

Familiarity Breeds Contempt
MARY turned away from the truth her mirror told, busied herself with elaborate ritual of bathing and changing into afternoon clothes. This would be the third benefit bridge party this week. She dreaded another, yet knew she would go docilely enough. In some small way, it would appease her mother, she hoped.

Mary sighed. She knew that Mother had a plan! Maybe she was trying to let "absence make the heart grow fonder!" Mary smiled to herself. Or maybe—and this idea snagged her full attention—she was fighting fire with fire!

So that accounted for Dan Sherman's presence in this house! Mary saw through it all now. Bring the enemy right into camp and then fight him with all the subtle weapons of which Evelyn Garthwaite was master!

Chapter 24
Rubber Boat
TWENTY-FOUR hours later, the wrecked planes still had not been located. And three more farmers from the mountain valley section had reported seeing the white parachutes.

Mary finished her duty at the post that morning almost reluctantly. As if she felt some nameless urge to stay on, to stand by for whatever was going to happen. Like an impending thunder storm, danger seemed to lower everywhere, a menacing unseen something that stood waiting—waiting!

Restless, Mary decided to walk up the beach a way. She walked rapidly, until the wind and the sea air whipped color into her cheeks, sent her blood racing through her veins. It eased the strain, too, quieted nerves that had been tight-strung for too long. She found herself laughing, remembering the days when as a little girl she'd chased her puppy tirelessly up and down this same beach, searched out and staked claims to "haunted" caves, collected rocks and shells.

Suddenly she was aware that she wasn't the only person on the beach. She looked up just in time to see someone disappear into one of the very caves she'd discovered years before!

For a moment, she just stood staring at the dark mouth of the cave. Her heart thumping, she tried to think what to do. To stay, to back for help? To stay, to identify the strange prowler? You had to have a permit now—since the shelling—to be on this beach. At the post, they'd been warned to report any stranger in sight.

She still hadn't decided, when the "someone" reappeared. Even from this distance, she recognized him at once. Dan Sherman!

But her eyes must be playing tricks. Dan was home, resting. Dad had forbidden his walking further than around the block. Her common sense argued with her as she started across the sand toward him. It shouldn't be Dan Sherman—but it was!

He saw her, scowled a moment, then shrugged, obviously embarrassed at being caught!

"What in the world are you doing here?" she demanded, almost smiling in her relief that he wasn't a Jap.

"What are you doing?" he thrust the question right back at her.

"I can't rest. I've got work to do. You run along, now. That's a good girl."

Dismissed—By Dan!
THEN she saw what Dan, too, must have discovered. The boat. A small rubber boat. She'd never actually seen one like it before except in the newsreels.

"What is that?"—she pointed to it.

"That," Dan said dryly without looking at it, "is a boat."

"But what is it doing here?" "It was hiding. In that cave. Until I found it."

"But—who hid it?"

He shook his head. "You've got me there, chum. But I smell a Jap."

"But how—where?" She turned, glanced out at the great expanse of blue-green ocean spreading away from the beach. "Easy! Via rubber boat to shore. Hide boat. Under cover of darkness or fog or both, go inland, dynamite a train trestle, get location of high-test gasoline tanks. Come back. Find boat. Go back to mother ship. Very successful trip, thank you very much, please."

"Oh, Dan. That couldn't happen—not here!"

"Sure it could. It has!" Then, glancing past her to the deserted beach beyond, "Look, this isn't a very healthy spot to be in. You trot on home. And say nothing about this at all, Promise?"

"Certainly. If you say so. But I think it should be reported to the authorities and—"

"I'll report it, don't worry. But the less you know, the better off you'll be. And secrets travel fast if they get a chance. So forget you even saw this." He nodded toward the strange boat.

"Won't you please come home, then, too?" she begged, knowing she was betraying herself to his mockery but too alarmed at his pallor to keep silent. "You must rest. You've been very ill. You shouldn't be out in this wind."

"Thanks for your kind sympathy, Lady Bountiful, but I'll manage okay. I've got to see a man on a little matter of business"—the ghost of his old smile. "Highly explosive business. You run along and peddle a Bond, there's a nice little soldier."

"If I can help, will you let me?" she pleaded, knowing it was hopeless.

"This isn't going to be any party, my little social butterfly, so I don't think I'll be needing your help. Thanks anyway."

"The rescue of the men from the Siren was no picnic either," she retorted hotly, and then could have snatched out her tongue.

"Touché!" he grinned now, teasing. "I'd forgotten you were Santa Phillipa's valiant girl-hero! Forgive me. I'll call on you when the going gets too rough."

Carmencita's Car
MARY felt him laughing at her as she turned, raced back down the beach towards the observation post and her parked car. She hated him—despised him—loathed him—and loved him so dearly her heart ached with the burden of it.

As she plodded back to the highway where her car was parked, she determined to rally the strong-willed common sense she'd once had. It was ridiculous to let her love for Dan Sherman make a fool of her. Other girls had loved hopelessly before and survived. Survived! Her heart echoed the word hollowly. And so what! If things just weren't fun any more—if nothing seemed really exciting—if your whole world seemed blacked out for keeps, what good was surviving!

She slammed shut the door of her car, ground the starter as if she smashed in the last remnant of her interest in the last of her sturdy oxford.

Then as she ducked her head out the window to make sure the highway was clear before she backed, she saw the car. The long, powerful red roadster Carmencita always drove, top down and very fast. It flashed around a curve, reappeared, rushed by a blur of red and chromium and disappeared down the highway.

It all happened in the space between two breaths but Mary had had ample time to see that Carmencita had a passenger. A man who closely resembled Dan Sherman!

Mary's new resolve shredded in the wind. So the little matter of a mysterious boat was a secret, was it? Secret that Carmencita de la Vega could share, however. Of course. And the old "hidden trail" down to the beach was their little secret now too! No wonder Dan had shooed Mary away with such a great show of concern for her safety. The only danger that had threatened then was that Mary might linger and spoil his little rendezvous with the lovely Senorita!

Grimly, she backed the car into the road, headed south toward Santa Phillipa. Dan, for all that he was smart enough to be a lieutenant and commander of a cutter, was certainly a push-over for a brazen schemer like Carmencita.

How to "PREPARE" Tin Cans for War Duty

Clean can well and soak off label!

Cut off both ends and flatten firmly

Tuck cut-off ends in can

Save in separate containers and give to an authorized collector

UNCLE SAM NEEDS YOUR TIN!

Follow these Official Instructions by the War Production Board!

Nearly ninety percent of America's tin formerly came from Malaya. And tin is vital to the war effort—for airplane parts, machine gun mounts, gas masks, countless other military uses! That's why Uncle Sam needs your old tin cans. Read the simple instructions below and cooperate with your Salvage Committee, Defense Council, and Municipal Authorities to help make the salvage of tin cans a big success in your community.

Important Facts to Help You.

All paint, oil, varnish, floor polish, or cone-shaped cans are not wanted for salvage. Evaporated- or condensed-milk cans are not worth saving. Put these with your trash.

Coffee cans and others with painted-on-can labels are wanted.

It is not necessary to wash off the small amount of glue which holds labels.

Be Patriotic.—Keep this leaflet in your kitchen for handy reference.

Why "Prepared Cans" Are Needed

1. Washing prevents deterioration of tin coating—assures sanitary conditions—and prevents contamination of detinning fluid.
2. Removing top and bottom permits the free flow of detinning fluid over all surfaces of the can.
3. Firmly flattened cans occupy less space in collection, shipment, and detinning operations—thereby decreasing handling costs and increasing plant capacity for detinning.

Start Saving Cans Now.—Properly "prepared cans" are clean and fit solidly into a basket or other container. They can be stored in the home conveniently for an indefinite period until collection methods are arranged.

Collection Day.—The designated collection day for your neighborhood will be announced and publicized intensively through your local salvage committee. Watch for newspaper and radio announcements.

Anderson and the men of the Allied forces," he said.

Referring to reports of differences between the British and Americans over the political line in North Africa, Atlee declared it was only natural that French affairs should not appear in the same light to the two Allied nations, but added that "such variations of outlook... ought not be exaggerated."

"Everyone there is cooperating," he asserted.

No secondary or personal consideration should prevent a union of French factions, Atlee continued.

Despite very bad weather conditions, Atlee said, there was not a day during November and December when Allied bombers were not out bombing the enemy on the continent.

Referring to the recent destructive raids on Berlin, Essen and Lorient he declared that the Allies would "continue to press on with these bomber attacks."

At 10 a. m. for the day's ceremonies, first of which was the induction of Lieutenant Governor John C. Bell, Jr., at 10:30 a. m. in the senate chamber.

The Office of Price Administration, enforcing a ban on pleasure driving of automobiles, ruled that cars could be used for the inauguration provided no alternative method of transportation was available. The ruling, however, still required motorists in distant parts of the state to measure the value of their gasoline ration coupons with the need to make the trip to Harrisburg.

With the change of governors, the 79-year-old executive mansion along the Susquehanna river gets new tenants, Governor and Mrs. James moving out and the incoming governor and his family taking over.

James, like many governors before him, thought the old brownstone house was unsuited for its purpose and early in his administration started plans for a new official residence for his successor. Plans were drawn for a $1,000,000 mansion but the war forced postponement of construction.

A military air was given the inauguration by selection of an army chaplain, Major Frank D. Scott, to deliver oration the invocation and the benediction, and a 19-gun salute to proclaim the new governor immediately after taking the oath.

The Volley Forge Military Academy band—only band on the official program—was given the assignment of providing music for singing "America" before the oath-taking and "The Star Spangled Banner" at the close.

Retiring Governor James and Mrs. James planned to leave later today for Wilkes-Barre to visit friends. After a vacation trip they will make their home at Plymouth, where the former governor will practice law.

One colorful feature of traditional inaugural ceremonies was retained—the inaugural ball—which will be held at the Zembo Mosque tonight. The proceeds will go to relief agencies of the armed forces.

The new governor and his cabinet arranged a public reception in the rotunda of the capitol after the inauguration.

have captured the Kamensk railway station and fought their way into the city. Kamensk is only 85 miles north of Rostov.

East of Rostov, on the lower river, the Russians were meeting stiff resistance, but below the Don the Red army's big guns were reported within shelling range of Nazi-held Salsk.

Russian troops driving back north through the Caucasus toward Rostov were thrusting along the Rostov-Baku rail line within 70 miles of Armavir, key junction east of the German-held Maikop oil fields.

FINE REFUNDED

McKeesport, Jan. 19—(P)—When McKeesport council repealed portions of a blackout ordinance, Judge Benjamin Lenchner refunded a $50 fine to Ralph H. Haines, a railroad worker, who had been charged with disregarding the order of an air raid warden.

WANTS FRIENDS TO WRITE
Robert D. Tucker, who is serving in the armed forces in Honolulu, is anxious to hear from his friends. He says in a letter to the Times-Mirror that he left without taking addresses of his friends. He comments on the blackouts where he is stationed and says the blackouts he saw in Warren before he left would be considered dimouts. His address is R. D. Tucker, Sea. 2/c; U. S. C. G. Seizure of Mines Hinted in Statement
(From Page One)
The president's order for the strikers to return to their jobs followed the War Labor Board's action yesterday in bringing to the White House a report on its effort to end the strike. The board suggested that Mr. Roosevelt "proceed with such action as you deem proper."

The president's assurance that, unless his back-to-work order was complied with, there would follow government steps to protect the country could lead to government seizure of the mines' operation.

Wilkes-Barre, Jan. 19—(P)—Nearly 5,000 striking miners returned to their jobs in Pennsylvania's anthracite field today in the largest back-to-work movement since the wildcat walkout began three weeks ago.

However, about 12,350 insurgents still remained idle, including 1,400 employees of the Glen Alden Coal Company's South Wilkes-Barre colliery which failed to reopen despite a vote by the UMW local there yesterday to resume operations.

The largest break in the ranks of the strikers came when 2,700 workers took up their jobs gain at the Eddy Creek, Miles Club and Grassy Island collieries of the Hudson Coal Company in the Scranton area.

Operations also were resumed at the Hazleton shaft colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, employing about 1,400, and the Edison Anthracite Company's Nesquehoning operation, with about 900 workers.

Concerning co-operation between the federal and state governments, Governor Martin said that "in all matters pertaining to the prosecution of the war we Pennsylvanians pledge our united and unreserved support to the president, the commander-in-chief of our armed forces," and added:

"We will, however, jealously guard those functions and prerogatives which, under our constitution, belong exclusively to the state. The American government was never intended to direct the lives and control the efforts and desires of the individual."

Asserting that more than 5,000 persons are employed by federal, state and local governments, Governor Martin said "these swollen payrolls add dangerous burden to an already overtaxed people," and added:

"Let us end unnecessary government boondoggling, snooping, overlapping and duplication!"

U. S. U-Boats Slash At Jap Supply Lines

Other Far Pacific developments saw Honolulu under a 17-minute air raid alarm, officially attributed to the presence of "unidentified elements later reported as friendly," while Allied warplanes rode the skies from Burma to the South Seas, inflicting heavy new punishment on the enemy.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said the capture of the two key Japanese strongholds on the Papuan beach clinaxed a series of coordinated attacks by two American and three Australian infantry forces.

In the Burma theatre, British headquarters reported that Field Marshal Wavell's forces captured the village of Kyauktaw, 40 miles northeast of the Japanese base at Akyab on the Bay of Bengal coast, after crushing slight enemy opposition.

Other British troops scored a small advance in the Dondak region on the Mayu Peninsula, above Akyab, and gained in operations against Rathedaung, 25 miles north of Akyab.

Farther northeast, in the Chin Hills, British Indian troops were reported to have contacted the Japanese, but no details were given.

Of the six wives of Henry VIII, two were executed, two were divorced, one died naturally and the sixth outlived him.

Choose his future today, Dad...

It's going to be one or the other!

HE'S an American, that baby of yours.

Hitler says he's a member of an inferior race.

If Hitler wins he'll grow up with only a slave's future. He'll be put into menial jobs. He won't have a chance to earn a living such as his father earned. He won't be allowed to be an executive, or a great medical man, or a writer, or a preacher, or a highly skilled mechanic. All good jobs will be run by Germans. They'll be his bosses.

And he's defenseless—this baby of yours. He can't do a thing about it. Only American fighting men, American planes, American ships, American guns, and American ability to produce armament stand on his side. Surely you won't let him down while another man is fighting for him.

Put at least 10 percent of your weekly pay check into War Bonds now! Invest at least 10 percent in your baby's future. Isn't he worth that much? Isn't his security and his right to an American way of life worth that "sacrifice" from you?

And remember—you don't give the money to your government. You invest it. Ten years hence your government will pay you back $25 for each $18.75 War Bond you buy today.

Get going—quick. It's been too little and too late too long. Sign up for your 10 percent today.

DO YOU KNOW?

When you buy WAR BONDS, you're saving, not giving! Series E WAR BONDS are worth 33 1/3 percent more in 10 years! You get back $4 for every $3 you invest!

These BONDS, when held to maturity (10 years), yield 2.9 percent per year on your investment, compounded semiannually!

Joining a Pay-Roll Savings Plan makes saving easy!

Joining your bank's Victory Club (it works like any Thrift or Christmas Club) is a convenient way to save for War Bonds for those who aren't members of a Pay-Roll Savings Plan.

You can have enough money to do a lot of things you'd like to do, and to buy the many things you'll need after the war is over, if you save enough in War Bonds every pay-day NOW!

You can start buying WAR BONDS by buying War Stamps for as little as 10 cents.
